Town of Huntington Zoning Compliance Certification

The Town of Huntington adopted zoning regulations in March of 1971. The Town of Huntington's Zoning Ordinance requires a Zoning Permit for any type of new construction, replacement constructions, additions, and alterations to any buildings, any changes of use of an existing structure, and any signs.

As the Zoning Administrative Officer for the Town of Huntington, I hereby certify that the Town is not currently pursuing any action to enforce its land development bylaws on the property described above. This certification is limited to its explicit terms: that the Town is not, as of the date indicated below, pursuing any enforcement actions on this property. This certificate does not preclude future enforcement actions. The responsibility for understanding how the Town's by-laws affect the future use of a property rests entirely with the purchaser of that property.
